UPDATE: EXPATRIATE HEALTHCARE PROFESSIONALS' OCCUPATION CATEGORIZATION CORRECTED

The Maldives Health Professionals Union (MHPU) informs its members and the public that the issue concerning the revised Xpat System Occupation Categorization List has now been rectified.

Following representations made by MHPU to the Ministry of Homeland Security, Labour and Technology and the Ministry of Health, Family & Welfare regarding the reclassification of several healthcare professions from "Professional" to "Non-Professional," along with the public awareness and social media campaign conducted by MHPU on the issue, the affected healthcare professions have now been correctly classified in the revised list published on the Xpat Portal.

The issue had directly affected expatriate healthcare professionals and their families, including MHPU members whose spouses and children are residing in the Maldives and whose dependent visas were approaching expiry.

MHPU calls on the Government to ensure that healthcare workers and the workers' unions are meaningfully included in decision-making processes when developing and implementing institutional and national policies that affect the healthcare workforce.

MHPU will continue to advocate for the rights and welfare of all healthcare workers, including expatriate healthcare workers who make an essential contribution to healthcare delivery in the Maldives.

We thank our members for bringing this matter to MHPU's attention and for their continued trust and support.

End.
